

Photos by Margaret Treadwell

OREGON NEEDS YOUR HELP TO MANAGE THE ROCKY COAST

Do you enjoy tidepooling on the Oregon Coast? About 41% of Oregon's coast is made up of rocky habitat including the dramatic headlands, rocky beaches, cliffs, and tidepools that make a trip down Highway 101 so memorable.

The State of Oregon is currently updating the plan responsible for managing our rocky coastline, and your input is needed! Interested individuals and organizations can now submit proposals to add, remove, or change management designations at rocky sites along the coast.

If you are interested in getting involved in rocky site proposals on the North Coast, contact North Coast Rocky Habitat Coalition.

North Coast
ROCKY HABITAT
COALITION

Contact: Margaret Treadwell
northcoastrockyhabitat@gmail.com
www.facebook.com/northcoastrockyhabitats